A heartwarming illustration of a young child with dark hair, wearing a red and yellow striped shirt, hugging a large, fluffy blue fox. The fox is lying down, its head turned slightly to the right, with its eyes closed in a peaceful expression. The child is nestled against the fox's chest, also with eyes closed and a smile. They are in a lush field of green grass, dotted with small white and yellow flowers. In the foreground, there are clusters of pink and white flowers. The background features rolling green hills under a warm, golden sunset sky with soft rays of light. The overall mood is tender and affectionate.

We Love You as Much as the Fox Loves Its Tail

By Masiana Kelly

Illustrated by Tamara Campeau

Little One, our new baby,
welcome to our family.

You don't know how long we've waited.

When you were born, we celebrated!

Now that you're here, our family is whole.
We've waited so long to meet your little soul.

We'll love you as much as the narwhal loves its tusk.

We'll love you as much as the seal loves its musk.

We'll love you as much as the muskox loves its hair.

We'll love you as much as the raven loves to stare.

Little One, our new baby,
welcome to our family.

A polar bear is shown in profile on the left side of the page, looking towards a herd of caribou in the distance. The caribou are running across a snowy field. In the background, there are rolling hills and a vibrant aurora borealis with streaks of green, purple, and pink light in the sky. The overall scene is set in a cold, arctic environment with some bare, leafless branches in the foreground.

We'll love you as much as the fox loves its tail.

We'll love you
as much as the caribou
love to run without fail.

We'll love you as much as the polar bear loves to sleep.

We'll love you as much as the beluga loves to dive deep.

Now that you are here,
and we are together,

we promise to love you,
as a family forever.

As long as the stars shine
bright in the sky.

As long as the waters swiftly flow by . . .

... forever and always,
Little One.